

I am writing in support of Wisconsin's Do Not Call list. I do not want to see it changed in any way. Since the call has gone into effect life at home in the evening is much more relaxing. Just because I might have had some contact with a bank does not give them the right to call me at home to try and sell me something.

Also, the elected representatives of our state enacted this law on our behalf. I do not see how an agency of the federal government should change that law in any way. To me it is a state's rights issue.

Again, I fully support the current Wisconsin Do Not Call law.

Sincerely,
Brady Bautch
